What is a Community of Practice?

A Community of Practice (CoP) is described as “a group of people who share a concern, a set of problems, a passion about a topic, and who deepen their knowledge and expertise in this area by interacting on an ongoing basis.” CoPs may evolve organically or may be supported and/or brought together by an organization.

Benefits of a Community of Practice

- Provides a new connection for members.
- Encourages interaction and communication among members.
- Encourages people to collaborate in a common venue of shared learning.
- Provides new knowledge for members to apply in other contexts.

Transitions Research & Training Center & Department of Mental Health Support

The Northeast Massachusetts Community of Practice for Transition Age Youth and Young Adults (MACOPTAYYA) was initiated through the involvement of a champion, a regional director of the state Department of Mental Health (DMH). With support from the Transitions Research and Training Center (RTC), the CoP built a partnership of committed stakeholders from various points of the system of service for TAYYA, thus building bridges across the adult and children mental health agencies.

Steps in Developing a CoP

- Leadership and a champion give credibility and attract participation
- Clarify the vision, purpose, goals and develop background documents
- Establish the infrastructure and support for communication, such as e-mail, discussion groups, other tools for building the resources of the community.
- Identify a launch event and invite potential members. At the launch, try to identify and agree on initial goals.
