Drug Courts 101

- How long have drug courts existed?
- Are there models or best practices that are adhered to for the structure and implementation of drug courts?
- Are all drug courts managed and implemented the same way?
- Who are the team members that a judge works with to provide help?
- Are drug courts just for youth offenders and do they address addiction from alcohol as well?
- What are some advantages (economic and others) of a Drug Court over incarceration?
Drug Courts Reduce Crime

• Nationwide, 75% of Drug Court graduates remain arrest free at least 2 years after leaving the program.

• Rigorous studies examining long-term outcomes of individual drug courts have found that reductions in crime last at least 3 years and can endure for over 14 years.

• The most rigorous and conservative scientific “meta-analyses” have all concluded that Drug Courts significantly reduce crime as much as 45% more than other sentencing options.

Drug Courts Save Money

• Nationwide, for every $1.00 invested in Drug Court, taxpayers save as much as $3.36 in avoided criminal justice costs alone.

• When considering other cost offsets such as savings from reduced victimization and healthcare service utilization, studies have shown benefits range up to $27 for every $1 invested.

• Drug courts produce cost savings ranging from $3,000 to $13,000 per client. These cost savings reflect reduced prison costs, reduced revolving-door arrests and trials, and reduced victimization.

Drug Courts Ensure Compliance

• Unless substance abusing/addicted offenders are regularly supervised by a judge and held accountable, 70% drop out of treatment prematurely.
• Drug courts provide more comprehensive and closer supervision than other community-based supervision programs.
• Drug courts are six times more likely to keep offenders in treatment long enough for them to get better.
