Massachusetts Mental Health Diversion & Integration Program

Our Mission and Purpose
Helping law enforcement, health care, and social service communities work together to develop a seamless continuum of care for persons with serious mental illness who are charged with nonviolent crimes.

Advocate For Diversion
The Massachusetts Mental Health Diversion & Integration Program, (MMHDIP) advocates for the diversion of up to 40% of persons who are charged with nonviolent crime away from the criminal justice system into multi-agency treatment programs. In addition, we provide a supportive network of health care among the highways of this regal program.

Identify Resources
A 2002 special report of the Law and Psychiatry Program at the University of Massachusetts Medical School. The purpose of the MMHDIP is to work with local law enforcement, the courts, and health care and social service providers who are interested in creating a diversion program in their communities. The MMHDIP will work with these providers to establish a philosophy to help identify resources available in their communities to help service “gaps,” which may present barriers to the success of integration.

Find Funding
The MMHDIP will also work with community partners to help identify and apply for local area funding to help develop and sustain services to fill the service gaps and overcome barriers to creating and maintaining a diversion program.
