The Clubhouse Model

The Clubhouse Model of Psychosocial Rehabilitation originated at Fountain House in 1949. Currently, over 400,000 clubhouse members across 35 countries are supported by International Clubhouse Centers throughout the world. Clubhouses are founded on the following seven principles: (1) membership by volition, (2) self-help and mutual-help, (3) the whole person is treated, (4) the clubhouse is non-judgmental, (5) the whole person is treated, (6) the clubhouse is open to all who are willing to participate, and (7) the clubhouse is based on the whole person.

Clubhouse Employment Services & Supports

- Employment is voluntary, and it is "right of the member/remuneration." - Clubhouses assist in career change and competitive employment.

The International Center for Clubhouse Development (ICCD)

Established in 1994, the ICCD outputs and coordinates the development of clubhouses. The ICCD mission is to further the development of clubhouses worldwide. It does so through a clubhouse training series in North America, training in Asia, and the ICCD Certification Program. The ICCD provides international certification training to clubhouses worldwide. The ICCD Certification Program aims to recognize the quality and performance of ICCD-certified clubhouse programs. The ICCD Certification Program also recognizes the quality and performance of ICCD-certified clubhouse programs.
